

Founded in Spring 2012, Roughneck Review is an online journal featuring works by Bakersfield College students that are judged exceptional by faculty members. New issues are published in April and October of each year.

Only current or former Bakersfield College students are eligible for publication in this journal, and only works that are produced in classes, for clubs or college competitions, or other college events are featured on this site. In honor of our school's centennial, however, we now accept submissions of all kinds from alumni, regardless of whether or not the piece represent work produced while attending BC.

We encourage submissions representing the full range of works—scholarly papers, creative works (including poems, plays, stories, artwork, photos, musical or dramatic performances), and other media.
