

Sociology Assessment Plan Rev. 9/16/2018

Sociology	16-17	17-18	18-19	19-20	20-21	21-22
SOCIB1 - Introduction to Sociology
• Upon completion of the course, the student will be able to compare and contrast the basic elements of the three major theoretical perspectives in sociology.					P
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Apply the basic sociological concepts to culture, socialization, social structure, deviance, stratification, race/ethnicity, social institutions, demography, collective behavior, and social change.					P
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Describe the basic elements of the scientific method including the various methodologies used to collect, analyze, interpret the data/observations employed in sociological research.						P
SOCIB2 - Problems of Modern Society
• Upon completion of the course, the student will be able to define the objective and subjective components of social problems and demonstrate the ability to examine those problems from the perspective of the three major sociological theories.					P
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Evaluate and apply sociological concepts to the analysis of social problems including health care, substance abuse, deviance, social institutions, race/ethnicity, gender, youth/aging, demography, environment, technology, war/conflict, and social change.					P
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Relate the knowledge of the basic elements of the scientific method including the various research methodologies used to collect, analyze, and interpret the data/observations appropriate to the examination of social problems.				P
SOCIB20 - Social Psychology
• Upon completion of the course, the student will be able to differentiate and apply the basic theoretical perspective and concepts related to social psychology.		C
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Utilize the theories and concepts as a means to describe the role of social influence on such topics as the self, attitude formation and change, social judgment, persuasion, compliance, conformity, obedience, emotions, attraction and relationships, aggre					P
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Identify the basic elements of the scientific method including the various methodologies used to collect, analyze, and interpret the data/observations employed in social psychological research.		C
SOCIB21 - Special Projects/Sociology
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Apply the basic elements of the scientific method to an actual research project. This includes a working knowledge of the various methodologies used to collect, analyze, and interpret the data and/or observations employed in sociological research. And/or Demonstrate the ability to effectively present research findings.				P
SOCIB28 - Introduction to Gender
• Upon completion of the course, the student will be able to effectively demonstrate an understanding of the diverse sociological perspectives used to understand the construction and interpretation of gender, including the impact of multiple agents of socialization.			P
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Describe gender ideology and practices in multiple social institutions and across cultures and societies, including the interplay of race, ethnicity, class, and sexuality affecting gender relations.			P
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Relate the process by which people negotiate power and gender boundaries through their relationships with others and identify the social and political processes utilized to change gender inequalities and gender practices.			P
SOCIB36 - Sociology of the Chicano
• Upon completion of the course, the student will be able to identify and describe the sociological theories and concepts related to Chicano acculturation, assimilation and cultural change, by generations in the United States.					P
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Identify and describe the socioeconomic, economic characteristics and the stratification of Chicanos as it relates to their minority status, by their generation in the United States.			P
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Identify and describe the sociological characteristics and concepts that reflect the degree of acculturation and assimilation of the students extended family.					P
• Upon completion the student will be able to: Analyze the current status of Chicano immigration, economic, educational and political incorporation into all social class levels.			P
SOCIB45 - Minority Relations
• Upon completion of the course, the student will be able to identify and the describe the basic terminology of race, ethnic, and minority relations as well as the reasons for the immigration of minority groups and their historical patterns of acculturation and assimilation.	C
• Upon completion the student will be able to: List the various race, ethnic and religious minorities who have immigrated to this country, their process of assimilation and the special problems they encountered.	C
• Upon completion the student will be able to: List and analyze the current status of the various immigrant groups with regard to their acculturation, economic, educational and political structural assimilation.	C					